KEY HIGHLIGHTS

June 14th, AAV and AFV joined AAI's campaign and the strike of Swiss women workers to make their work visible, their demands heard, and demand the public spaces to belong to all.

A research by AAV has uncovered that in Vietnam, women spent 5 hours per day for unpaid care work which could account for 20% of Vietnam's GDP in 2015; and women workers – the majority of jobholders in garments, footwear, electronics, food processing and horticulture – received the second lowest level of minimum wage in Asia.

ActionAid Vietnam support women workers to ensure their rights to equal life conditions, economic opportunities, and gender responsive public services. We support Swiss #WomenStrike and women workers as they fight against a patriarchal capitalist system that is biased against women. #ILOconvention #AllWomenWork

Members of the Community – based Tourism Initiative in Quan Ba district, Ha Giang province continued to strengthen their business development skills. June 12th – 14th, members of Can Ty Linen Cooperative (majority H'Mong ethnic women) took part in a training course on “Home economics management and Time distribution” organized by Quan Ba Taigoo Cooperative and Management Board of LRP7A.

Program activities and impacts

Building people' capacity to develop sustainable livelihoods

Similarly, 20 women in Nho Quan district, Ninh Binh province (LRP25) participated a water hyacinth knitting training courses, while another class in sewing attracted 16 people (14 women and 2 men) as part of the project “Promotion of disability inclusive and disaster prepared communities (iDDR)”. They are majorly people with disabilities and their family members. During these 1-month training courses, the locals learnt the production techniques and started to make profit from their products, ranging from 50,000 to 240,000 Dongs/person/day, exclusive of material costs.

This brings more than additional incomes to their families besides agriculture production. These women and men were unemployed before joining the courses. Now, they have a vocation for a more stable earning and prospects of growth using locally available materials. The enhancement in livelihoods and group participation will enhance disabled people's confidence and proactiveness in taking initiative to improve other aspects of their lives, including disaster preparedness and social inclusion.

Program activities and impacts

16th – 19th June, 45 members (27 women and 18 men) of the organic vegetable production groups in Krong No district, Dak Nong province (LRP12) acquired the production and marketing skills to develop the organic vegetable model.

With the facilitation of the leading expert on participatory guarantee system (PGS) – Dr. Tran Thi Thanh Binh, the participants practiced inspecting and supervising organic vegetable production at household level, clarifying organic standards, and packing product using environmentally friendly materials. Program activities and impacts

Women-led initiatives to build resilient communities

19th – 25th June, 03 information, education and communication events on natural disaster preparedness and climate change were organized in Ward 8, Ward 9, and Long Duc commune, Tra Vinh city (LRP102). 280 participants from women-led community development groups, People's Committees, mass organizations, and local communities in all 3 areas actively participated in art-based performances to communicate about climate change, disaster preparedness, and risk reduction.

Community awareness makes the basis for behaviour change. The information exchanged in this event initiated further discussion and skills sharing among community members, contributing to enhancing their readiness in responding to disasters and climate change.

The activity is part of project “Women response to natural disaster and climate change in Tra Vinh city” co-funded by Forum Syd, ActionAid Sweden, and ActionAid Vietnam.

Initiative to End Gender Violence in Garment Industry

29th June, two Topic Talks were organised with the participation of 170 workers in garment factories in Hai Phong city (LRP11) and Ho Chi Minh city (LRP21), focusing on women's rights to sexual autonomy and bodily integrity. Psychological support, reliable addresses, and legal advice were also provided to victims of sexual harassment.

According to AAV's research in these 4 factories in 2018, 42.4% of the interviewed workers who experienced sexual harassment chose to stay silent, making the problem more challenging to address.

Encouraged to share their stories, the women workers took this opportunity to voice their concerns, taking one bold step towards combatting sexual harassment at the work place. Their participation will contribute to building a mechanism for sexual harassment prevention and victim protection at their factories.

Program activities and impacts

Continued efforts to eliminate sexual harassment & school violence

The series of events to raise awareness on preventing sexual harassment were attended by hundreds of students, teachers, and parents in various elementary and secondary schools in LRP19. In LRP18, 06 training courses attracted 150 members of Community Development Groups (70% are from the ethnic minorities Ede, H'Mong and Van Kieu).

The participatory method with interesting activities (role-plays, painting, etc.) engaged the enthusiastic engagement of students and women to identify the manifestation and consequences of sexual harassment and school violence. They were able to detect perpetrators and protect themselves and others.

Safe communities are built by individuals with proper understanding and capacity to take action. Therefore, AAV works eagerly with communities across the countries to develop their capacities to make a safe living environment.

Impact story of the month

Ms. Bui Thi Phuong, 36 years old, lives in Nho Quan district, Ninh Binh province. She is among the best skilled sewers in the sewing group of people with disabilities in Thach Binh commune. With this job, she earns from 2 to 2.5 million Dongs/month, which enables her to assure her children's education.

Phuong used to work at a factory, but had to quit 4 years ago to take care of the children when her husband passed away. With mobility impairments, she could barely afford her family with the income from agriculture and temporary jobs, which was scarce for a disabled person as herself. Sometimes, she had to consider having her children quit school due to lack of money to buy learning equipment.

June 2019, Phuong joined the sewing group supported by project "Promotion of disability inclusive and disaster prepared communities (iDDR)". With a sewing machine granted by the project, she learns and works diligently, becoming one of the most productive sewers, earning between 100,000 and 120,000 Dongs per day. She is now relieved from the worries about her children's schooling, "I even have savings to buy them new books and clothes for my children, I no longer have to worry about borrowing money as the school year begins", happily shared Phuong.

With her determined efforts, Phuong continues to learn from the group leader and other members to improve her skills. She genuinely hopes that the group will grow bigger so that more persons with disabilities will have a chance to change their lives as she does.

Fundraising

In 2019, AAV and AFV continue to mobilize corporate funding to improve the quality of public services for women and children. On 17th and 27th June, students and teachers in Binh Hung Hoa 1 and Ngo Quyen primary schools in Binh Tan district, Ho Chi Minh city (LRP21) received delegations of Better World Co. and ChildFund Korea to discuss about project implementation plan and future cooperation.

These Korean non-governmental organizations bridge businesses and the needed support to improve education quality for children. Seeking potential cooperation with AAV and AFV, they visited the two primary schools to identify needs to upgrade the education infrastructure, particularly sanitary facility system, classrooms, and surrounding walls.

Having investigated the situation and discussed with the students and teachers, the donors' representatives agreed on the proposed support with funding from Korea South – East Power Co, Ltd. And KB Securities. It is expected that these supports will directly benefit 4,625 students and 141 teachers in total.

Fundraising

June 2019, AFV successfully confirmed the funding at EUR 824,000 from Bread for the World for project “Strengthening resilience at the community level”. In the next 3 years, AFV will work with vulnerable communities in Tra Vinh and Soc Trang provinces to enable them to better combat unpredictable environment hazards.

Under the same priority, AAV will work with women in 7 communes and wards in Hai Phong city and Ho Chi Minh City to implement the project “Promoting women participation and leadership to respond to natural hazards” with the financial support of GBP 300,000 by Asia Hub. The action aims at mitigating impacts of climate change in the urban and industrial areas, wherein women, especially migrants, will be empowered to take the leading role.

These projects will contribute to realizing AAV-AFV’s Programme Priority 1, that is to strengthen people’s capacity to build safe communities, to adapt and resile to climate change and disaster, and to improve sustainable livelihoods
